Sitting on tree stumps around mushroom and toadstool tables they took their tea. The tea is made of flower petals and spices from the lands of summer and even further away than that. It reminded little summer elf for a minute of home, but she was having so much fun here...