August has a favorite tree down the path and sometimes they bring a book to read or some paper to draw on or like today, they simply came to sit and daydream. As soon as they almost dozed off to the sound of bees buzzing and a breeze through the leaves a water sprite came to visit.
She shares with them some very important information.