

Inside the land of spring Anka finds tiny sprouts of fiddle head ferns popping up out of the lush earth. The sun hums a warm hum and the sprouts reach toward the glow. Anka can feel the life coming from these little beings. She puts out her hand and sings to them with the tune of the sun. The song goes like this...

