

The star anise stepping stones have been there as long as anyone can remember. There are stories about how they got to be there in the first place. Some of the stories involve magic and giants, others involve large ships from far to the east and ferocious storms. The children tell a story about how they think they got to be there..

A series of horizontal dashed lines for writing, spanning the width of the page.

