

King Winter's palace is a wondrous place. Filled with beautiful things to look at, to touch and to listen to for he was a collector and maker of many treasures. The children enter and felt they could spend years here without seeing everything. King Winter would always send each of his guests home with something very special...

