Jack has a very important job. The trees may not know to change colors without his magic. The animals of the forest may not know to prepare for the winter to come without the frosty clues Jack lays upon the land. He waits all the summer long to get to work and he is happiest at this time. He likes best to spread the frost in the...